

November 18th Zoom Meeting

Navigating Discussions on Social Justice with Your Child

CREATING SAFE & BRAVE SPACES WHILE LEARNING TO BE AT PEACE

Unfortunately, social injustices are seen and experienced everywhere. Social media, the news networks, publications, and more provide vivid and traumatizing visuals with descriptions that stay in our minds, haunt us, and steal our peace of mind. But what if we were able to create discussions in brave/safe places where strategies and tools are used to bring about respectful conversation and possible solutions, despite our differences of opinions? That would be the beginning of addressing social injustices. So let's begin now!

Attend this session led by Mr. Omowale K. Crowder, who will teach techniques and provide tools to help parents create discussions with their child. You'll learn how to respectfully interact with people with opposing views, focus on facts and research, all while building bridges and making positive connections together. The key is to stay, cool, and calm, and walk away when respectful conversation between both parties is not possible.
