

Credit Flex

Credit Flexibility is a student driven process designed for independent and motivated learners. Through this process, the student demonstrates their understanding and skills according to their unique learning styles and interests in order to meet the requirements and standards for a particular course. Credit for Credit Flexibility is not tied to seat times that are traditionally associated with High School credits.

Credit Flex Methods:

Individual Proposal

Student will design their individual proposal around the state standards set for the specific course. The student will submit a detailed description and outline of how they will master the course's state standards and content.

Exam & Demonstration

Student will take a content specific exam and provide a demonstration (e.g. presentation, project, or essay) showing mastery of the course's state standards and content.

Student may also use a score of 3 or higher on End of Course State Tests in place of District Exam*

Exam Only

AP, IB, Math and World Languages

Student will take an exam to show a mastery of the course's state standards and content.
