Content Elaborations

A variety of opportunities exist at the local, state, and national levels for students to engage with issues that appeal to them.

As students look for opportunities for civic engagement, they will identify issues, and then research, debate, and propose appropriate solutions. As part of this process, students will devise action plans, and examine the possible consequences of each proposed solution, weighing the costs and benefits of each approach.

Political processes are related to the acquisition of governmental power and influencing governmental decision-making. Public policy processes are related to the institutional actions and procedures involved with the government carrying out its functions.

Instructional Strategies

Begin this course by conducting a class discussion: Why is government a required course? Ask students to discuss ways in which they might use their learning from this course to become active citizens.

Have the class brainstorm a list of the knowledge, skills, dispositions (attitudes), and actions that reflect effective citizenship. Ask students to draw from their history classes to give examples of individuals and actions that reflect these characteristics.

View or attend meetings of local, state, and national government. Identify current issues of public policy debate.

Invite a guest speaker from an advocacy group to discuss how they use political processes to influence public policy.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Develop a civic action project to address a public policy issue or problem utilizing the following steps:

1. Identify a problem to study
2. Conduct research/gather information
3. Examine possible solutions
4. Develop your own public policy
5. Develop an action plan
6. Evaluate the project

Unpacked Learning Standards / Clear Learning Targets

Learning Target 18. Analyze a public policy issue in terms of collaboration or conflict among the levels of government involved and the branches of government involved.

Content Statement 18. A variety of entities within the three branches of government, at all levels, address public policy issues that arise in domestic and international affairs.

Essential Understanding

- How public policy is made at various levels and branch of government

Extended Understanding

- Contemporary debates on public policy issues

Academic Vocabulary Tier 3

- public policy issue

Ultimate Learning Target Type: Reasoning

Broad Learning Target:

- The student can analyze a public policy issue in terms of collaboration or conflict among the levels of government involved and the branches of government involved.

Underpinning Knowledge Learning Targets:

- The student can define public policy issues.
- The student can give examples of public policy in the federal executive branch.
- The student can give examples of public policy in the federal legislative branch.
- The student can give examples of public policy in the state legislative branch.
- The student can give examples of public policy in the state judicial branch.
- The student can give examples of public policy in the local legislative and executive branches.

Underpinning Reasoning Learning Targets:

- The student can explain why branches and levels of government may engage in collaboration and conflict as they attempt to address public policy issues.

8.GO.22 (Prior Grade Standard)

The U.S. Constitution established a federal republic, providing a framework for a national government with elected representatives, separation of powers, and checks and balances.

Content Elaborations

Public policy issues are matters of discussion and debate related to the functions of government. They frequently revolve around problems the government is attempting to address and the projected consequences of public policy decisions.

Examples of different levels and different branches of government addressing public policy issues includes:

- federal executive – the Department of State, which advises the president on foreign policy and directs activities of embassies in foreign countries;
- federal legislative – the Congressional Budget Office, which provides analyses of economic and budgetary data
- state legislative – the Ohio Legislative Service Commission, which assists in drafting legislation;
- state judicial – the Ohio Courts of Common Pleas, which apply sentencing guidelines for convicted felons; and
- local legislative/executive – county commissions, which determine and grant tax abatements.

The complexity of public policy issues may involve multiple levels and branches of government. These levels and branches may engage in collaboration or conflict as they attempt to address public policy issues.

Instructional Strategies

Create a graphic organizer to show examples of different levels and branches of government addressing public policy issues.

Use news sources to locate public policy issues in which multiple levels and branches and/or levels of government are involved. Use different color highlighters to show the multiple branches and levels. Explain how the levels and branches are engaging in collaboration or conflict.

Research the roles and functions of a particular federal or state agency. Describe the origins of the agency and how its role has evolved over time.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Which federal agency would be involved in addressing this situation?

Which level and branch of government provides analysis of this data?

Select two issues that would be addressed by the branches of state government.

What role does the executive branch at the federal level play in making foreign policy decisions?

What is the role of the Congressional Budget Office?

How does the state judicial branch of government shape public policy?

What actions can local governments take to establish public policy?

Research a current public policy issue that involves collaboration and/or conflict among levels and branches and government. What are the main sources of conflict between the branches and levels? How are the conflicts being resolved?

Unpacked Learning Standards / Clear Learning Targets

Learning Target 19. Defend different positions on public policy issues and determine an approach for providing effective input to the appropriate level and branch/agency of the government.

Content Statement 19. Individuals and organizations play a role within federal, state, and local governments in helping to determine public (domestic and foreign) policy.

Essential Understanding

- Determining the best approach for addressing public policy issues

Extended Understanding

- Contemporary debates on public policy issues

Academic Vocabulary Tier 3

- public policy issue

Ultimate Learning Target
Type: Reasoning

Broad Learning Target:

- The student can defend different positions on public policy issues and determine an approach for providing effective input to the appropriate level and branch/agency of the government.

Underpinning Knowledge Learning Targets:

- The student can describe methods by which individuals and organizations provide input on public policy issues at the federal level of government.
- The student can describe methods by which individuals and organizations provide input on public policy issues at the state level of government.
- The student can describe methods by which individuals and organizations provide input on public policy issues at the local level of government.

Underpinning Reasoning Learning Targets:

- The student can connect an action with the appropriate level and branch of government to address the issue.

8.GO.22 (Prior Grade Standard)

The U.S. Constitution established a federal republic, providing a framework for a national government with elected representatives, separation of powers, and checks and balances.

Content Elaborations

Individuals and organizations engage government officials on public policy using several methods. Individuals and organizations can:

- campaign for candidates who will support their positions once in office;
- provide information to executive branch officials on the impacts of potential rules and regulations;
- lobby members of a legislature;
- provide testimony before legislative committees;
- propose laws to legislators;
- prepare briefs to present during judicial proceedings;
- offer comments during public meetings;
- conduct letter-writing campaigns; and
- hold public demonstrations.

Individuals and organizations must know the proper level and branch of government to engage at the various stages of making public policy

Instructional Strategies

Have students work collaboratively to identify a public policy issue, identify the appropriate level of government to address the issue, the appropriate agencies involved, and identify appropriate local, state and/or federal officials to contact about the issue.

Career Connection: As students select a public policy issue to analyze, they will reflect on how the policy impacts them and their community (e.g., access to services or benefits, safety and security, rights or responsibilities). Students will describe how their future career might be impacted by the policy (e.g., social and civic responsibility, lobbying, regulations, taxes). Then, they will navigate the agency's website to identify employment opportunities and required minimum qualifications.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Develop a public policy proposal to address a current issue or problem.

List two methods by which individuals or organizations may provide input on public policy issues at the federal, state, and local levels.

Match each civic action below with the appropriate level and branch of government to address the issue.

Which methods would be effective in helping to influence public policy on the following issue _____?

- media
- civic issue

Ultimate Learning Target Type: Reasoning

Broad Learning Target:

- The student can select a political party or interest group to address a civic issue, identify a type of media as a means of communication, then defend the viability of the choices made in an effort to achieve a successful result in resolving the civic issue.

Underpinning Knowledge Learning Targets:

- The student can describe the role of political parties in influencing public policy.
- The student can describe the role of interest groups in influencing public policy.
- The student can describe the role of the media in making public policy.

Underpinning Reasoning Learning Targets:

- The student can determine which political parties or interest groups address specific civic issues.
- The student can determine which means of communication are most effective for addressing specific civic issues.
- The student can evaluate the viability of various choices in resolving a civic issue.

8.GO.2I (Prior Grade Standard)

Informed citizens understand how media and communication technology influence public opinion.

(Future Grade Standard)

N/A

Content Elaborations

Political parties consist of organizations whose members hold similar views on public issues. Political parties seek to determine public policy through winning elections and having their members hold public office.

Interest groups consist of organizations whose members hold similar views on public issues. Interest groups seek to influence the making and execution of public policy by engaging in political and public policy processes.

Media are various means of mass communication with different audiences. Political parties and interest groups use media to influence the political and public-policy processes

Instructional Strategies

Have students view political advertisements (print or other media) from groups with different perspectives along the political spectrum and compare the advertisements on the basis of media techniques employed (e.g., card stacking, plain folk, testimonial) and the type of message (e.g., logical argument, ad hominem attack, positive image).

Have students research the platform of a political party (including third parties) and/or interest groups and create a multimedia presentation or poster.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Take on the role of political campaign workers and develop strategies to attract young people to participate in an election campaign.

Create a campaign commercial for a political candidate.

How do political parties seek to influence public policy making?

Unpacked Standards / Clear Learning Targets

Learning Target 3. Identify the factors that determine the credibility of a source and evaluate the credibility of a given source.

Content Statement 3. Issues can be analyzed through the critical use of credible sources.

Essential Understanding

- Analysis of issues through public records, surveys, research data and policy positions of advocacy groups.

Academic Vocabulary

Tier 3

- public records
- public opinion
- research data
- credibility
- advocacy groups

Ultimate Learning Target
Type: Reasoning

Broad Learning Target:

- The student can Identify the factors that determine the credibility of a source and evaluate the credibility of a given source.

Underpinning Knowledge Learning Targets:

- The student can describe the steps involved in researching a civic issue.
- The student can list the considerations involved with determining the credibility of sources.
- The student can identify the qualifications/reputation of the writer and/or organization of a source.
- The student can describe the circumstances in which a source was generated.

Underpinning Reasoning Learning Targets:

- The student can determine which sources of information are relevant to a particular civic issue.
- The student can evaluate internal consistency and agreement with other credible sources.
- The student can evaluate supporting evidence and logical conclusions in sources.
- The student can evaluate bias or unstated assumptions in sources.
- The student can evaluate the credibility of sources on a civic issue.

10.HI.1 (Prior Grade Standard)

The use of primary and secondary sources of information includes an examination of the credibility of each source.

(Future Grade Standard)

N/A

Content Elaborations

Researching a civic issue involves determining which sources of information are relevant to the task, identifying the perspective or position of each source, and evaluating the credibility of the sources. Considerations involved with determining the credibility of sources and/or media outlets include:

- the qualifications/reputation of the writer and/or organization;
- the circumstances in which the source material was generated;
- internal consistency and agreement with other credible sources;
- use of supporting evidence and logical conclusions; and
- evidence of bias or unstated assumptions.

Instructional Strategies

Direct students to collect selections of information and opinion from various sources pertaining to a current issue. Have students work in small groups to determine the relevance each selection has to the issue and evaluate the credibility of each selection using a rubric (based on the list from content elaborations). Allow each group to select one member to report the group's finding to the entire class.

Obtain a recent Gallup Poll and its results on a current issue. Have students take the survey and then compare classroom results to national results. Conduct a debriefing exercise to offer explanations for similarities and disparities in the results.

Assign each student to collect selections of information and opinion from various sources pertaining to a current issue. Have students determine the relevance each selection has to the issue and evaluate the credibility of each selection using a rubric (based on the list from content elaborations). Have each student prepare a report summarizing his or her work.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Which source would be most relevant to the author's claim?

What two sources lack credibility due to potential bias?

How does the author's experience as a state legislator enhance the credibility of his argument?

What perspective is provided in the source below?

What considerations are used to determine the credibility of sources? Check all the correct answers.

What evidence could be used to support or oppose the following position _____?

Categorize the perspectives below by moving the boxes to the correct column on the chart.

Read the source below. Evaluate the credibility of the source and cite a reason why the source would or would not be considered credible.

- The student can use consensus building to resolve a civic issue.
- The student can use negotiation to resolve a civic issue.

4.GO.16 (Prior Grade Standard)

Civic participation in a democratic society requires individuals to make informed and reasoned decisions by accessing, evaluating and using information effectively to engage in compromise.

(Future Grade Standard)

N/A

Content Elaborations

The focus of this standard is on the group dynamics and interpersonal skills involved in decision making. This complements the focus of other content statements on the formal procedures and institutions of governing. The democratic process depends on these skills for effective functioning. These skills are studied and assessed within a real-world context as a collective, interdependent group as opposed to isolated techniques. For example, negotiation may involve persuasion and lead to compromise.

While these skills are presented in the abstract here, students examine them in the context of the rest of the course. No specialized or technical understanding of these terms is required; common definitions are sufficient for examining the contributions these skills make to the democratic process.

Instructional Strategies

Divide students into two groups. Allow the first group to engage in a discussion of how to resolve a contentious issue. Have students in the second group label individual note cards with the words Persuasion, Compromise, Consensus Building and Negotiation. Have the members of the second group serve as observers of the first group's discussion. As the dynamics of the discussion proceed, have individual members of the second group hold up one of the four index cards containing the word or words representing what process they see taking place in the first group's discussion at that time.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

What action taken by the Senate leader is an example of consensus building?

Select two scenarios that demonstrate the process of compromise.

In which section of the speech does the president attempt to persuade those who disagree with him?

Read each situation below. Identify the method used to influence legislators in the passage of a bill in each situation. Move each method into the correct blank box.

Explain why persuasion, compromise, consensus building or negotiation was necessary in each conflict or situation below.

As you complete your civic action project, identify reasons why persuasion, compromise, consensus building or negotiation will be necessary to carry out your policy proposal.

10.HI.6 (Prior Grade Standard) The U.S. Constitution established the foundations of the American nation and the relationship between the people and their government.	(Future Grade Standard) N/A

Content Elaborations

Basic principles which help define the government of the United States include:

- popular sovereignty;
- limited government;
- federalism;
- separation of powers; and
- checks and balances.

Popular sovereignty is the principle that governmental authority is derived from the people. Under this principle, the government governs with the consent of the governed.

The principle of limited government holds that a government can only exercise the powers granted to it. Government must be conducted according to the rule of law.

Federalism is a system in which power is divided between a national and state governments. Under the U.S. Constitution, this principle is reflected in the division of powers between the national government and the states.

The principle of separation of powers requires a distribution of governmental powers among independent branches. Each of the branches has a specific field of authority and unique set of responsibilities within the operation of the government.

Checks and balances constitute a system for controlling government power. Under this principle, each branch of government possesses the ability to restrain certain actions of the other branches.

Instructional Strategies

Create a chart/graphic organizer to show the basic principles of government. Use vocabulary concept maps to unpack each principle. Concept maps can include descriptions, examples, non-examples, and non-linguistic representations/symbols.

Close read excerpts from historical documents of the founding era to identify evidence of the basic principles of government.

Research and cite examples from current news sources that illustrate applications of the basic principles that help define the government of the United States.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Which basic principle of American government is illustrated through the president's decision in this scenario?

Select two amendment excerpts that expanded the principle of popular sovereignty.

Select the boxes to distinguish between provisions of the U.S. Constitution that describe checks and balances and provisions that describe federalism.

Read the passage below. Determine which basic principles of the U.S. Constitution are applicable to the case.

The basic principles of the U.S. Constitution are listed in the boxes below. Select a principle and complete the diagram to show how that principle affects the structure of government.

How does federalism shape the structure of the U.S. government?

In the article below, explain how separation of powers and checks and balances influenced the relationship between government and citizens.

Ultimate Learning Target
Type: Skill

Broad Learning Target:

- The student can cite arguments from the Federalist Papers and/or the Anti-Federalist Papers that supported their position on the issue of how well the Constitution upheld the principle of limited government.

Underpinning Knowledge Learning Targets:

- The student can summarize the position of the Federalists on the extent of national government power.
- The student can summarize the position of the Anti-Federalists on the extent of national government power.
- The student can explain how the overall principles of the Constitution reflect the Federalists' arguments.
- The student can explain how the Bill of Rights reflects the Anti-Federalists' arguments.

Underpinning Skills Learning Targets:

- The student can read and interpret passages from the Federalist Papers.
- The student can read and interpret passages from the Anti-Federalist Papers.

Underpinning Reasoning Learning Targets:

- The student can compare the perspectives of Federalist and Anti-Federalists on the principle of limited government.
- The student can connect a Federalist or Anti-Federalist argument with a specific provision of the Constitution.

10.HI.7 (Prior Grade Standard)

The debate presented by the Federalist and Anti-Federalist Papers over protections for individuals and limits on government power resulted in the Bill of Rights. The Bill of Rights provides constitutional protections for individual liberties and limits on governmental power.

(Future Grade Standard)

N/A

Content Elaborations

The supporters of the ratification of the Constitution became known as Federalists and the opponents as Anti-Federalists. The Federalist Papers and the Anti-Federalist Papers discussed key principles of government as they related to the circumstances of that time.

Federalists argued:

- for Constitutional ratification;
- for the supremacy of the national government;
- for more powers to be given to the national government to address weaknesses of the Articles of Confederation (e.g., no power to tax and no national executive or judicial branches); and
- for the "necessary and proper" and "supremacy" clauses.

Anti-Federalist argued:

- against Constitutional ratification;
- for supremacy of the state governments;
- for the need of a national bill of rights to protect citizens from the powers of national government; and
- against the "necessary and proper" and "supremacy" clauses.

The Constitution was ratified and the Anti-Federalists achieved success with the limitations on government by the adoption of the Bill of Rights.

Instructional Strategies

Use graphic organizers (column chart, buckets, etc) to compare arguments of the Federalist and Anti-Federalists.

Using notecards or a digital tool, categorize quotes from historical figures as Federalist or Anti-Federalist arguments.

Have students read excerpts from the Federalist Papers, No. 44, "Restrictions on the Authority of the Several States," and No. 45, "The Alleged Danger from the Powers of the Union to the State Governments Considered" as well as excerpts from the Anti-Federalist Papers, "A Consolidated Government is Tyranny" and "Federalist Power Will Ultimately Subvert State Authority." Conduct small-group discussions followed by a large-group discussion on the relative merits of the arguments set forth. Have students consider which side in this debate they support given present-day circumstances.

Use contemporary news sources to compare current views national and state power and compare these viewpoints to the Federalists and Anti-Federalists.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Select the boxes to distinguish between Federalist and Anti-Federalist quotations.

What would be an Anti-Federalist counterargument to Madison's main point in the excerpt?

Which statement articulates an argument made by Federalists during the ratification debates?

Use your knowledge of Federalists and Antifederalists to identify which group held each of the positions below.

Read the excerpt below. Determine whether the argument reflects a Federalist or Antifederalist view of the Constitution. Explain the reasoning for your answer.

What argument did the Antifederalists use to support limited government?

Describe one idea expressed in the Federalist Papers related to limited government, and then describe one counterargument in the Anti-Federalist Papers.

Content Elaborations

The protection of civil liberties and limits on the federal government found in the Bill of Rights include, but are not limited to:

- freedoms guaranteed by the First Amendment: religion, assembly, press, petition, speech;
- the right to bear arms;
- no unreasonable search and seizure, no warrants without probable cause;
- no self-incrimination, protection against double jeopardy;
- right to speedy and public trial by an impartial jury, right to be informed of the charges, the right to confront one's accuser(s), the right to counsel;
- no cruel or unusual punishment; and,
- any power not given to the federal government is given to the states or the people.

Instructional Strategies

Create a graphic organizer to show the civil liberties and limits on the federal government found in the Bill of Rights.

Have students close read excerpts from the Federalist Papers, No. 84, "Certain General and Miscellaneous Objections to the Constitution Considered and Answered," and the Anti-Federalist Papers, "On the Lack of a Bill of Rights." Conduct small-group discussions followed by a large-group discussion on the relative merits of the arguments set forth. Have students consider which side in this debate they support given present-day circumstances.

Analyze Madison's and Webster's arguments against the need for a Bill of Rights and have students decide if our government would be different without those guarantees.

Read Supreme Court case studies to apply the Bill of rights to specific scenarios. Have students read summaries of the arguments and discuss how they think the Supreme Court should rule.

Locate news stories related to the Bill of Rights and determine which protections apply.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Select the three scenarios where freedoms guaranteed by the First Amendment have been violated.

Which limitation on the federal government's power was violated by the lower court's action?

Which protection found in the Bill of Rights allows the state government to take the described action?

Which choice below reflects an example of limited government found in the Bill of Rights?

How is limited government addressed in the Bill of Rights?

Content Elaborations

Laws are rules recognized as binding and enforced by a government. Public policy consists of institutional actions and procedures pursued by a government in carrying out its functions. Each of the three branches of government has a role related to law and the creation of public policy.

Legislative Branch:

- makes laws;
- declares war; and
- imposes taxes.

Executive Branch:

- enforces the law;
- issues executive orders; and
- appoints and receives ambassadors.

Judicial Branch:

- interprets the law;
- hears cases with original jurisdiction; and
- hears appeals from lower courts

Instructional Strategies

Have students prepare a graphic organizer (e.g., chart, diagram, photo display) to represent the powers and responsibilities of the three branches of government.

Using notecards or a digital tool, have students categorize various roles related to public policy with the correct branches of government.

Use news sources to examine current public policy issues and determine how the three branches of government are involved.

Have students recognize each of the three branches as they are discussed in the media under various titles (e.g., executive branch – presidency, the administration, executive agencies, the White House; legislative branch – Congress, House of Representatives, Senate, legislature; judicial branch – Supreme Court, federal courts, the judiciary, appellate courts).

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

What power belongs to the judicial branch of the federal government?

Select the boxes to associate each branch of government to its respective powers.

Which branch of government enforces the law?

What action can the president take to change public policy?

Which branch of government has the power to _____?

Complete the graphic organizer below by identifying which branches have the responsibilities listed.

Which is a power of the legislative branch of government?

How does the executive branch establish public policy?

Which is an example of public policy established by the judicial branch?

Learning Target 13. Use examples of checks and balances among two or three branches of the federal government to illustrate dynamic interactions.

Content Statement 13. The political process creates a dynamic interaction among the three branches of government in addressing current issues.

Essential Understanding

- Political dynamics in the interaction between branches

Extended Understanding

- Current public policy issues within the branches of government

Academic Vocabulary Tier 3

- checks and balances
- political dynamics
- veto override
- appellate jurisdiction
- impeachment

Ultimate Learning Target Type: Reasoning

Broad Learning Target:

- The student can use historical or contemporary examples of interactions among two or three branches of the federal government to analyze the political dynamics involved.

Underpinning Knowledge Learning Targets:

- The student can explain the purpose of checks and balances.
- The student can give examples of legislative checks on the executive branch.
- The student can give examples of legislative checks on the judicial branch.
- The student can give examples of executive checks on the legislative branch.
- The student can give examples of executive checks on the judicial branch.
- The student can give examples of judicial checks on the legislative branch.
- The student can give examples of judicial checks on the executive branch.

Underpinning Reasoning Learning Targets:

- The student can explain how interest groups impact the interaction among the three branches.
- The student can explain how political parties impact the interaction among the three branches.
- The student can explain how public interest and media coverage impact the interaction among the three branches.
- The student can explain how informal relationships among members of each branch impact the interaction among the three branches.

8.GO.22 (Prior Grade Standard)

The U.S. Constitution established a federal republic, providing a framework for a national government with elected representatives, separation of powers, and checks and balances.

(Future Grade Standard)

N/A

Content Elaborations

Current issues are addressed by all three branches of the government as they make public policy. The interactions among the branches range from instances where they work together in concert to instances involving the exercise of checks and balances. Examples include:

- legislative branch checking the executive: overrides vetoes, impeaches and removes civil officers, approves appointments and treaties;
- legislative branch checking the judicial: impeaches and removes federal judges, proposes constitutional amendments;
- executive branch checking the legislative: vetoes legislation;
- executive branch checking the judicial: nominates federal judges, grants pardons and reprieves;
- judicial branch checking the legislative: reviews and interprets the laws, declares acts unconstitutional; and
- judicial branch checking the executive: reviews and interprets the laws, federal judges not subject to removal by president, declares executive acts unconstitutional.

The interaction among the three branches of government is impacted by the following:

- interest group involvement, e.g. proposing legislation, advocating rules, filing briefs;
- political party control of the executive and legislative branches;
- amount of public interest and nature of media coverage/commentary; and
- informal relationships among the members of each branch.

Instructional Strategies

Create a graphite organizer or diagram to show checks and balances and interactions among the branches of government.

Have students research an impeachment proceeding, a presidential veto, or a law that has been overturned by the Supreme Court. Have students describe how each of these actions helped maintain a balance of power in the U.S. government.

Have students research the political processes involved in a current issue and choose a method to illustrate the interaction between at least two branches of government (e.g., the president delivering a stump speech to raise public demands for congressional action).

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Which is an example of Congress checking the president?

Select two ways the judicial branch can check other branches of government.

Select the boxes to distinguish between judicial branch checks on presidential power and legislative branch checks on presidential power. What is one example of a check of the legislative branch by the judicial branch of government?

How does single-party control of the legislative branch influence the interactions between the legislative and executive branch?

The chart below shows examples of checks and balances in the U.S. government. Complete the chart by labeling each box with legislative, executive, or judicial branch.

8.GO.22 (Prior Grade Standard)

The U.S. Constitution established a federal republic, providing a framework for a national government with elected representatives, separation of powers, and checks and balances.

(Future Grade Standard)

N/A

Content Elaborations

Public policy issues are matters of discussion and debate related to the functions of government. They frequently revolve around problems the government is attempting to address the projected consequences of public policy decisions.

Examples of different levels and different branches of government addressing public policy issues includes:

- federal executive – the Department of State, which advises the president on foreign policy and directs activities of embassies in foreign countries;
- federal legislative – the Congressional Budget Office, which provides analyses of economic and budgetary data
- state legislative – the Ohio Legislative Service Commission, which assists in drafting legislation;
- state judicial – the Ohio Courts of Common Pleas, which apply sentencing guidelines for convicted felons; and
- local legislative/executive – county commissions, which determine and grant tax abatements.

The complexity of public policy issues may involve multiple levels and branches of government. These levels and branches may engage in collaboration or conflict as they attempt to address public policy issues.

Instructional Strategies

Create a graphic organizer to show examples of different levels and branches of government addressing public policy issues.

Use news sources to locate public policy issues in which multiple levels and branches and/or levels of government are involved. Use different color highlighters to show the multiple branches and levels. Explain how the levels and branches are engaging in collaboration or conflict.

Research the roles and functions of a particular federal or state agency. Describe the origins of the agency and how its role has evolved over time.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Which federal agency would be involved in addressing this situation?

Which level and branch of government provides analysis of this data?

Select two issues that would be addressed by the branches of state government.

What role does the executive branch at the federal level play in making foreign policy decisions?

What is the role of the Congressional Budget Office?

How does the state judicial branch of government shape public policy?

What actions can local governments take to establish public policy?

Research a current public policy issue that involves collaboration and/or conflict among levels and branches and government. What are the main sources of conflict between the branches and levels? How are the conflicts being resolved?

Content Elaborations

Similarities between the Ohio and U.S. Constitutions:

- separation of powers into three branches (executive, judicial, legislative);
- checks and balances;
- limited government;
- bill of rights;
- popular sovereignty; and
- elections.

Differences between the Ohio and U.S. Constitutions:

Ohio Constitution

- Citizens can directly vote on laws through initiative and referendum.
- Judges are elected.
- Legislators are term limited.

U.S. Constitution

- Legislators vote on laws for citizens.
- Judges are appointed.
- Legislators do not have term limits.

In 1851 a new Ohio Constitution was written which made several changes to improve governing including:

- Major executive officials and all judges were to be elected.
- District courts were added.
- Debt limitations were instituted.

Instructional Strategies

Create a graphic organizer such as a Venn diagram to compare similarities and differences between the Ohio and U.S. Constitutions.

Use notecards or a digital tool to categorize features as Ohio Constitution or U.S. Constitution features.

Conduct a class discussion on some of the differences between Ohio and the U.S. Constitution. Have students take a position on whether there should be term limits in the state and national legislatures, whether judges should be elected or appointed, and whether citizens should be able to vote directly on laws.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

List two powers that are denied by the U.S. Constitution to Ohio's state government, but are exercised at the federal level.

Describe four similarities between the Ohio Constitution and U.S. Constitution.

Describe four differences between the Ohio Constitution and U.S. Constitution.

Determine whether each feature below is true of the Ohio Constitution or U.S. Constitution. Move the boxes to the correct blanks on the chart.

4.GO.15 (Prior Grade Standard)

Individuals have a variety of opportunities to act in and influence their state and national government. Citizens have both rights and responsibilities in Ohio and the United States.

(Future Grade Standard)

N/A

Content Elaborations

Ohioans can assist the government in addressing problems affecting the state and local communities.

Involvement at the state level can range from paying taxes to serving in the National Guard, running for state office, voting, and signing petitions to place issues on the ballot.

Involvement at the local level can range from organizing civic activities to running for local office, attending meetings of local boards and commissions, joining community watch groups, and serving in a volunteer fire department.

Instructional Strategies

By examining how Ohioans can assist the government in addressing problems, opportunities are opened for students to engage in activities related to civic involvement identified earlier in the coursework.

Students can participate in mock governmental activities to demonstrate different roles of township government, school district governance, etc.

Have students attend meetings of local government and, based on a set of guiding questions, report on proceedings to the class. Have the class discuss the issues addressed in the meeting reports.

Examine how a local political entity functions, how a citizen can affect change through this entity, and have students take an issue and research a possible resolution through this entity.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

What is an example of a citizen assisting his or her local government?

How can a citizen participate in government at the state level?

Select two examples of citizens volunteering at the local level. Which is an example of how a citizen can become involved in addressing problems that impact the entire state of Ohio?

How could a citizen work within his or her community to help local government address a community issue?

Content Elaborations

The protection of civil liberties and limits on the federal government found in the Bill of Rights include, but are not limited to:

- freedoms guaranteed by the First Amendment: religion, assembly, press, petition, speech;
- the right to bear arms;
- no unreasonable search and seizure, no warrants without probable cause;
- no self-incrimination, protection against double jeopardy;
- right to speedy and public trial by an impartial jury, right to be informed of the charges, the right to confront one's accuser(s), the right to counsel;
- no cruel or unusual punishment; and,
- any power not given to the federal government is given to the states or the people.

Instructional Strategies

Use Supreme Court case studies to analyze the application of the protections of the Bill of Rights in history and contemporary society.

Create a timeline or multimedia presentation showing how interpretations of a particular amendment have evolved over time.

Use news sources to examine recent issues or cases related to the Bill of Rights. Identify the specific rights involved and how courts have interpreted these rights.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Select the three scenarios where freedoms guaranteed by the First Amendment have been violated.

Which limitation on the federal government's power was violated by the lower court's action?

Which protection found in the Bill of Rights allows the state government to take the described action?

Which choice below reflects an example of limited government found in the Bill of Rights?

How is limited government addressed in the Bill of Rights?

Learning Target 14. Explain how the fulfillment of civic responsibilities is related to the exercise of rights in the United States.

Content Statement 14. In the United States, people have rights that protect them from undue governmental interference. Rights carry responsibilities that help define how people use their rights and that require respect for the rights of others.

Essential Understanding

- Relationship between civic responsibilities and rights of citizens

Extended Understanding

- How failure to fulfill a civic responsibility can lead to the denial of a right

Academic Vocabulary Tier 3

- civic responsibility
- due process
- incorporation
- political process

Ultimate Learning Target Type: Reasoning

Broad Learning Target:

- The student can explain how the fulfillment of civic responsibilities is related to the exercise of rights in the United States.

Underpinning Knowledge Learning Targets:

- The student can list citizens' rights granted in the Constitution and Bill of Rights.
- The student can explain the due process clause of the 14th Amendment.
- The student can explain how incorporation expands the Bill of Rights to state and local governments.
- The student can describe the rights of Americans that protect the ability to participate in the political process.
- The student can describe the responsibilities of citizenship.

Underpinning Reasoning Learning Targets:

- The student can connect responsibilities of citizenships with particular rights.
- The student can explain how failure to fulfill a civic responsibility can lead to the denial of a right of citizenship.
- The student can explain why individual rights are relative, not absolute.

The U.S. Constitution protects citizens' rights by limiting the powers of government.

(Future Grade Standard)

N/A

Content Elaborations

People in the United States have claims to protection from government intrusion in certain aspects of their lives. These claims are called rights. The federal Bill of Rights not only enumerates many rights, but alludes to other unstated rights.

Many of the rights held by American citizens protect the ability to participate in the political process, such as speech, press, assembly, petition, suffrage, and hold public office. The U.S. Supreme Court, in its interpretation of the 14th Amendment's due process clause, has instituted the doctrine of incorporation meaning that most of the guarantees in the Bill of Rights also apply to state and local governments.

There are general responsibilities of citizenship. They include respecting the rule of law, paying taxes and fees, and accepting responsibility for one's actions. There also are responsibilities associated with the exercise of particular rights. Examples include:

- right of free speech – engaging in civil discourse;
- right to bear arms – receiving firearms training;
- right to jury trial – serving on juries; and
- right to vote – registering to vote and being informed on public issues.

Citizenship also includes service to the nation which guarantees the rights of the people. This may include military service, community service and serving in public office. Individual rights are relative, not absolute. The exercise of rights must be balanced by the rights of others and by the common good.

Instructional Strategies

Create a graphic organizer showing how specific responsibilities are associated with the exercise of particular rights.

Examine instances of the use of rights to engage in political and public policy processes (e.g., political campaigns, efforts to influence the legislative process). Students also can examine contemporary issues which impact the exercise of rights (e.g., instances of "hate speech," the impact of reapportionment on legislative districts).

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Complete the diagram below to show the relationship between civic responsibilities and rights of citizenship.

Explain the phrase “individual rights are relative, not absolute.” Give an example to support your explanation.

Read the scenario below. Highlight the text referring to rights and explain which rights need to be balanced.

Explain how a fulfillment or failure to fulfill a civic responsibility affects the exercise of a stated right.

Broad Learning Target:

- The student can select an example of how constitutional government in the United States has changed the meaning and application of any one of the basic principles that help define the government of the United States and summarize the nature of the change.

Underpinning Knowledge Learning Targets:

- The student can describe the ways that constitutional government in the United States can be changed.
- The student can summarize how constitutional amendments have changed the original document and previous amendments.
- The student can explain how judicial review has interpreted provisions of the Constitution to clarify and extend their meaning.
- The student can give examples of acts of Congress that have expanded constitutional principles.
- The student can give examples of how informal practices have changed the implementation of constitutional government.

Underpinning Reasoning Learning Targets:

- The student can analyze how specific changes altered or changed the meaning or application of constitutional government.

Content Elaborations

The operations of government in the United States take place within a framework provided by the U.S. Constitution. However, the U.S. Constitution has been amended, interpreted, and implemented in a variety of ways.

The processes for formally amending the U.S. Constitution are outlined in the document. Constitutional amendments have added to, modified, replaced and/or voided provisions of the original document and previous amendments.

The U.S. Supreme Court, in deciding cases brought before it, has frequently interpreted provisions of the U.S. Constitution to clarify and extend their meaning. With its power of judicial review, the Supreme Court has also declared actions of the branches and of the states to be unconstitutional. The U.S. Congress, in creating legislation, has provided details which build upon the framework of the Constitution. For example, civil rights acts and voting rights acts have provided specific directions to promote constitutional principles.

Informal practices also have changed how constitutional government has been implemented in the United States. These practices are related to provisions in the Constitution, but venture into areas not specifically addressed in the Constitution. For example, legislative oversight of the executive branch grew in part out of Congress' need for information to help draft new legislation.

Instructional Strategies

Create a multimedia timeline showing the evolution of constitutional government in the U.S. through amendments, Supreme Court decisions, and congressional legislation. For each entry, identify the background and impact of the change.

Conduct a class discussion on the power of judicial review. What authority does the Supreme Court have to declare law unconstitutional? Does judicial review make the Supreme Court too powerful? What checks limit the power of the Supreme Court?

Use notecards or a digital tool, match up a series of changes in constitutional government with the means by which the change came about (amendment, judicial review, congressional legislation, informal practices).

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Which congressional action represents an informal practice not specifically prescribed by the Constitution?

Select two Supreme Court rulings that clarified the meaning of this amendment.

Which of the amendments shown voided the main provision of an earlier amendment?

What are two ways that constitutional government in the United States can be changed?

Which is an example of Congress using legislation to build upon the framework of the Constitution?

The boxes below show specific changes to the U.S. Constitution. For each change, cite the basic principle of the U.S. Constitution that was altered and how its meaning or application changed as result.

Read the excerpt below from a Supreme Court decision. How did this case change the application of one of the basic principles of the U.S. Constitution?

Some amendments prohibited the denial of voting rights based on the following:

- race, color, or previous condition of servitude;
- age (18-20-year olds); and
- gender.

Poll taxes also limited voting rights for poor people although they were originally designed to keep African Americans from voting.

Instructional Strategies

Research a movement that led to amendments prohibiting the denial of voting rights for a particular group. What strategies were used to advocate for change? What arguments were used against the movement? What was the impact of the amendment?

Conduct a class discussion on issues related to voter suppression today. Issues for discussion include voter identification laws, reducing poll locations, and unregistering voters who have not participated in recent elections. Compare these actions with strategies such as poll taxes in limiting voting rights.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Select three groups of people who were given the right to vote through the passage of a constitutional amendment.

Why were poll taxes implemented?

How did the passage of this amendment provide for civil rights for a disenfranchised group?

Explain how amendments to the Constitution expanded suffrage to various groups.

Content Elaborations

The Framers of the Constitution created a method of presidential selection that reflected the nation's federal system of government. The president would be chosen based on electoral votes from the states. A candidate is required to win a majority of the total number of electoral votes in order to secure the presidency. Electoral votes are determined based upon the number of each state's representatives and senators.

Some amendments have altered the procedures of the Electoral College:

- Separate balloting for president and vice president was established to avoid a tie in electoral votes.
- The District of Columbia was granted electoral votes.

Other amendments have altered the functioning of government:

- Presidential term limits.
- Presidential succession and disability

Instructional Strategies

Create a graphic organizer to show how constitutional amendments have changed the Electoral College and U.S. Presidency.

Use electoral college maps from American history to show how power has shifted to different states and regions of the country over time. Discuss the pros and cons of these shifts.

Create a video ad or write an essay on whether or not the Electoral College should be eliminated through constitutional amendment. Present arguments and reasoning from different perspectives on the topic.

Conduct a class debate on the following prompt: Resolved: The Electoral College should be replaced with a nationwide popular vote.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Which restriction on the presidency was instituted through the passage of a constitutional amendment?

Select two amendment excerpts that describe changes to the procedures of the Electoral College.

Which statement reflects the process of electing a president, as established by the Electoral College?

How does the current procedure of the Electoral College differ from the original method?

Describe two ways that Constitutional amendments have altered the functioning of the government in relation to the presidency.

Content Elaborations

The new constitutional protections extended under the Reconstruction Amendments include:

- abolishing slavery;
- defining and extending citizenship to all persons born or naturalized in the U.S.;
- prohibiting the states from denying due process and equal protection of the law to all persons; and
- preventing the denial of voting rights based on race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

These amendments were originally designed to protect African Americans. However, they did not result in immediate equality. Jim Crow laws were enacted to enforce racial segregation until the mid-20th century.

Application of these protections have been extended to other groups.

Instructional Strategies

Create a graphic organizer showing the provisions of the Reconstruction Amendments.

Close read and analyze the original text of the Reconstruction Amendments.

Use photographs and primary sources (excerpts of laws) of Jim Crow era segregation to have students analyze the ways in which racial segregation was enforced until the mid-20th century.

Research one of the Reconstruction amendments to identify ongoing issues related to the amendment, how its meaning has evolved, and how protections have been extended to other groups.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

- How did the Reconstruction Amendments change the criteria for citizenship in the United States?
- What is one reason that the Reconstruction Amendments failed to result in immediate equality for African Americans?
- What action was taken by state governments in the South to deny the rights guaranteed to African Americans by this amendment?
- After the Civil War, how did the federal government attempt to accomplish the goal of establishing freedoms for former slaves?
- What Reconstruction era conditions was the 14th Amendment designed to correct?
- Read the historical scenario below. Which Reconstruction era amendment was designed to address this situation?

Content Elaborations

The U.S. Constitution guarantees rights to the people of the United States. Historically, despite those guarantees, various groups of people have been denied the ability to fully exercise their rights. Over time, the U.S. government has responded to public pressure to take action to ensure the free exercise of rights by all people and to protect their ability to participate in the processes of governing.

For example, constitutional amendments guaranteed suffrage to women and eliminated poll taxes as a means of restricting African Americans from voting. The executive branch used troops to help integrate schools and brought charges against violators of open housing legislation. The legislative branch enacted a series of civil rights acts and voting rights acts. The U.S. Supreme Court, through the process of incorporation, has used the due process and equal protection clauses in the 14th Amendment to apply most of the federal Bill of Rights to the states.

Instructional Strategies

Research the civil rights movement of the 1950s and 1960s. Have students consider the resulting achievements and their impact on current civic life. Have students discuss how the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 helped open access to more elements of American society and provide more opportunities to minorities.

Discuss how the laws passed in the 1960s by the Congress (e.g., Civil Rights Act of 1964, Voting Rights Act of 1965), executive acts (e.g., integration of the military, affirmative action programs) and Supreme Court decisions (e.g., Brown v. Board of Education, Regents of the University of California v. Bakke) helped enforce the rights addressed by the 14th and 15th Amendments.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Select two ways the U.S. government has extended civil rights to marginalized groups.

How has the Supreme Court used the 14th Amendment to strengthen the application of the Bill of Rights?

Which example demonstrates how Congress can strengthen voting rights?

What issue was addressed by the 19th Amendment?

Complete the diagram below to show how the federal government addressed the denial of rights to each group. Move the boxes to the correct blank next to each group.

Explain how the passage of the 26th Amendment continued the change toward greater participation in government.

Content Elaborations

Fiscal policy is government decision-making about taxing and spending in an attempt to regulate the American economy. In theory, fiscal policy falls into two broad categories:

- increased government spending and/or reduced taxes to encourage economic growth; and
- decreased government spending and/or increased taxes to slow economic growth.

The imposition of government regulations may foster economic benefits such as prohibiting unfair business practices and providing consumer protections. Government regulations may carry costs such as reduced corporate profits and slower economic growth.

Instructional Strategies

Create a graphic organizer that shows fiscal policy categories and the economics benefits and costs of various policies.

Research historical examples of government spending or tax policy, such as the Works Progress Administration (WPA), the GI Bill and the George W. Bush administration's tax cuts. A follow-up report should describe how effective each example was in supporting and stimulating the economy. Examples include the: WPA and how well it enhanced infrastructure; GI Bill and how well it educated groups of young people and enabled new homeowners; and Bush tax cuts and how well they increased consumer spending.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

How can the federal government encourage economic growth?

Which government action will reduce the pace of economic growth?

Select two effects of increased government regulation.

Why would a legislature decide to increase taxes and decrease government spending?

What makes it difficult to reduce federal government spending?

Which change in taxes and expenditures would likely cause inflation?

Which change in taxes and expenditures would likely increase consumer spending.

Categorize each government action as either spending or taxing methods of influencing the nation's economic conditions. Move the actions to the correct blank boxes.

Give two economic benefits and two economic costs of government regulations of the economy.

Content Elaborations

Monetary policy involves the Federal Reserve System making decisions about the nation's money supply.

To encourage economic growth, the Federal Reserve System can:

- reduce the amount of money that banks must have on reserve and not use to make loans;
- buy bonds; and
- take action that results in lower interest rates.

To slow economic growth the Federal Reserve System can:

- increase the amount of money that banks must have on reserve and not use to make loans;
- sell bonds; and
- take action that results in higher interest rates.

Instructional Strategies

Create a flowchart or diagram to show how the Federal Reserve makes decisions about the nation's money supply.

Select one of the tools used by the Federal Reserve and then discuss the reasoning behind the use of the tool in a given set of economic conditions, how the particular use of the tool impacts the actions of banks, and the intended result for the particular use of the tool.

Use news sources to examine current policies of the Federal Reserve. Identify the monetary tools and the intended outcome of the policies. Compare the policies to previous Fed actions and evaluate the policies.
