Content Elaborations

The use of primary and secondary sources in the study of history includes an analysis of their credibility – that is, whether or not they are believable. This is accomplished by checking sources for:

- qualifications and reputation of the author;
- agreement with other credible sources;
- perspective or bias of the author (including stereotypes);
- accuracy and internal consistency; and
- circumstances in which the author prepared the source.

Instructional Strategies

Provide examples of primary and secondary sources related to history content being studied. Have students use a graphic organizer to help them analyze the credibility of the sources. Sources should be in multiple formats and mediums, representing differing perspectives and timeframes.

Students create a National History Day project, examining primary and secondary sources to analyze historical events to provide evidence to support a thesis. Information on Ohio History Day can be found at <http://www.ohiohistory.org/historyday>.

To help students analyze primary sources:

- provide a highlighted document;
- create a bulleted list of important points;
- have students work in heterogeneous groups;
- modify the readability of the document by inserting synonyms for difficult vocabulary;
- provide two versions of text, one in original language and one in modified language;
- provide students a typed transcript, often available on history websites; and
- add captions or labels to clarify the meaning of graphics and images.

Have students analyze a set of newspaper headlines on the same story and determine perspective/bias shown.

Read a list of source descriptions and identify a reason (based on established criteria) why one might question the credibility of the source.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Which source has the appropriate qualifications to be considered a credible source of information?

What bias is reflected in the source below?

Read the source below. Evaluate the credibility of the source and explain the criteria you used in your evaluation.

Reading Like a Historian Intro Materials (Stanford History Education Group) - The Reading Like a Historian curriculum engages students in historical inquiry. Each lesson revolves around a central historical question and features a set of primary documents designed for groups of students with a range of reading skills.

Beyond the Bubble: History Assessments of Thinking (Stanford History Education Group) - Explore over 100 easy-to-use assessments that measure students' historical thinking rather than recall of facts.

Civic Online Reasoning: Intro to What's the Evidence? (Stanford History Education Group) - This lesson will help students develop skills for critically evaluating varied forms of evidence online.

Document Analysis (National Archives) - Students think through primary source documents for contextual understanding and to extract information using four steps: meet the document, observe its parts, try to make sense of it, and use it as historical evidence.

Primary Source Analysis (Library of Congress) - Students analyze a variety of primary source types using a three step process: observe, reflect, and question.

Claim Testing Introduction (World History OER Project) - Claim testing helps students “see” and evaluate people’s assertions, and gives shape to one of the most important and useful critical thinking practices in history.

Learning Target 2. Develop a thesis and use evidence to support or refute a position.

Content Statement 2. Historians develop theses and use evidence to support or refute positions.

Essential Understanding

- Supporting or refuting a thesis with evidence

Extended Understanding

- Using evidence for a thesis in an extended research project

Academic Vocabulary

Tier 2

- thesis
- evidence
- support
- refute

Ultimate Learning Target
Type: Skill

Broad Learning Target:

- The student can develop a thesis and use evidence to support or refute a position.

Underpinning Knowledge Learning Targets:

- The student can define and explain a thesis.
- The student can identify sources of evidence for historians.

Underpinning Skills Learning Targets:

- The student can develop a thesis.
- The student can use evidence to support a thesis.
- The student can use evidence to refute a thesis.
- The student can cite sources used to support or refute positions.

Underpinning Reasoning Learning Targets:

- The student can distinguish between a list of events and a historical interpretation.

8.HI.1 (Prior Grade Standard)

Primary and secondary sources are used to examine events from multiple perspectives and to present and defend a position.

10.HI.2 (Future Grade Standard)

Historians develop theses and use evidence to support or refute positions.

Content Elaborations

Historians are similar to detectives. They develop theses and use evidence to create explanations of past events. Rather than a simple list of events, a thesis provides a meaningful interpretation of the past by telling the reader the manner in which historical evidence is significant in some larger context.

The evidence used by historians may be generated from artifacts, documents, eyewitness accounts, historical sites, photographs and other sources. Comparing and analyzing evidence from various sources enables historians to refine their explanations of past events.

Historians cite their sources and use the results of their research to support or refute contentions made by others.

Instructional Strategies

Have students develop theses for use in historical papers and debates. In either context, the thesis should be supported with historical evidence and documentation.

Display numerous artifacts or other primary sources related to a historical event (e.g., industrialization, imperialism, World War I). Give students the task of selecting and organizing a certain number of the resources to interpret. Have each student develop a thesis to explain the relationship among the selected resources, using information to support their theses.

Students create a National History Day project, examining primary and secondary sources to analyze historical events to provide evidence to support a thesis. Information on Ohio History Day can be found at <http://www.ohiohistory.org/historyday>.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Read the statement below. Which thesis does the statement support?

Read the sources below. Then choose the thesis statements historians could compose based on these sources.

Using the data provided, support or refute the following thesis: _____.

Using the sources below, construct a thesis about _____ and provide two pieces of evidence that support it.

Complete the chart below by matching the evidence to a thesis. Move the boxes to the correct spaces on the chart.

Learning Target 3a. Identify examples of multiple causation and long- and short-term causal relationships with respect to historical events.

Learning Target 3b. Analyze the relationship between historical events taking into consideration cause, effect, sequence and correlation.

Content Statement 3. Historians analyze cause, effect, sequence, and correlation in historical events, including multiple causation and long- and short-term causal relations.

- Analyzing cause and effect relationships

Extended Understanding

- Evaluate causation and correlation through counterfactual scenarios

Academic Vocabulary

Tier 2

- cause

- causation
- correlation
- sequence

Ultimate Learning Target
Type: Reasoning

Broad Learning Targets:

- The student can identify examples of multiple causation and long- and short-term causal relationships with respect to historical events.
- The student can analyze the relationship between historical events taking into consideration cause, effect, sequence and correlation.

Underpinning Skills Learning Targets:

- The student can place historical events in sequential (chronological) order.

Underpinning Reasoning Learning Targets:

- The student can analyze the long-term causes of historical events.
- The student can analyze the short-term causes of historical events.
- The student can analyze the short-term effects of historical events.
- The student can analyze the long-term effects of historical events.
- The student can differentiate between causes and correlations in historical events.

6.HI.1 (Prior Grade Standard)

Multiple tier timelines can be used to show relationships among events and places.

10.HI.3 (Future Grade Standard)

Historians analyze cause, effect, sequence, and correlation in historical events, including multiple causation and long- and short-term causal relations.

Content Elaborations

When studying a historical event or person in history, historians analyze cause-and-effect relationships. For example, to understand the impact of World War I, an analysis would include the causes and effects of the war.

An analysis also would include an examination of the sequence and correlation of events. How did one event lead to another? How do they relate to one another?

For example, an examination of the causes of World War I would include the assassination of Austrian Archduke Ferdinand by a Serbian nationalist as a short-term cause and Serbian opposition to the rule of Serbia by imperial powers as a long-term cause.

Instructional Strategies

Present students with a series of historical events. Ask them to determine which ones happened before a certain event and could serve as causes, and which ones came after the event and could be a consequence or effect. Follow-up discussions can focus on short-term vs. long-term causes and effects.

Have students discuss the cause and effect of the five Ps (power, prestige, protection, profit and principle). For example, students can work in collaborative groups to discuss the role of each of the 5Ps in leading up to World War I. Then, have students analyze the effects of each of the Ps on the actions and reactions of the involved countries, leaders and people.

Help students clarify the difference between cause and effect using the following activities:

- Present students with several historical facts/events and ask them to label causes and effects appropriately;
- Use charts, especially flow charts, when clarifying cause and effect relationships;
- Provide a list of historic events in a jumbled sequence and ask students to explain why the sequence does not make sense.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Explain one development that led to the following historical event _____.

Read the passage below. Explain a long-term causal relationship between _____ and _____ based on the information provided.

Complete the chart below by matching causes with effects. Move the boxes to the correct spaces on the chart.

Creating a timeline to demonstrate the long-term and short-term causes of _____.

Using the graphing organizer below, group events that relate to one another with their common factors. Move the boxes to the correct spaces.

Explain two effects of the following development in World History: _____.

Instructional Resources

Why Did It Happen: Making Claims about Cause and Effect (Teaching History) - This article provides strategies for teaching about cause and effect relationships and helping students write cause and effect claims.

Causation in History (Active History) - This site provides an introduction to causation in history, including philosophical and practical approaches, and categorizing factors.

Cause and Consequence (The Historical Thinking Project) - This brief article introduces causation in history, including the role of human agency.

History Frame (Reading Quest) - Like a story map in literature, history frames allow students to map out the elements of historical events: where and when did the event take place? Who was involved? What was the problem or goal that set events in motion? What were the key events? How was it resolved? and So what?

Diamond Diagrams (Tarr's Toolbox) - Students organize nine pieces of information (such as causes and effects) in a diamond shape to show prioritization and/or significance.

Stop Action and Assess Alternatives (Teaching History) - Stop Action and Assess Alternatives is a method for teaching students to think of historical events as contingent. They unfold from conscious decisions made by the involved parties who use the information available to them at the time of these events to make those decisions.

Graphic Organizers (Education Oasis) - This site includes over 60 printable graphic organizers, including 10 different cause and effect organizers.

Content Elaborations

The Scientific Revolution marked a shift from the perception that truth is revealed solely through the Bible and the Church to the perception that truth could be learned through experience and investigation. It challenged religious teachings on the origins of the universe and explanations for natural phenomena. The Church reacted strongly against the scientists who challenged established beliefs.

The Scientific Revolution served as the beginning of the challenging of established ideologies, leading to the Enlightenment and eventually the political revolutions that took place in Western Europe and colonies beginning in the late 18th century.

The Scientific Revolution's impact on cultural institutions included education. The number of scientific academies and museums grew with the support of monarchs. The Royal Society of London and the French Academy of Science helped establish the credibility of science as a discipline.

The scientific method paved the way for modern science. New scientific discoveries resulted from this new way of explaining natural phenomena impacting the study of anatomy, astronomy, mathematics, medicine.

Instructional Strategies

Discuss the concept of "revolution." Ask students to identify some revolutions they have heard of. Discuss the difference between revolution and evolution (change that occurs quickly vs. changes that occurs gradually).

Have students use charts/graphic organizers to show cause-and-effect relationships between the ideas of the Scientific Revolution and changing views of religious, political and cultural institutions after the Scientific Revolution. For example:

	Before Scientific Revolution	After Scientific Revolution
Religious beliefs
Political views
Cultural practices

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Which statement shows how the Scientific Revolution changed the perception of truth?

What is one effect of the Scientific Revolution?

What political changes resulted from new ways of thinking that began during the Scientific Revolution?

Complete the graphic organizer by moving the statements below to the correct spaces to show causes and effects of the Scientific Revolution.

Content Elaborations

The Enlightenment movement began in Europe and inspired change across the world. Enlightenment thinkers believed in the influence of nature and in human progress. Some suggested that humans were naturally good and by freely exercising reason, would act for the common good. This required freedom from the restraints of the government and the Church. Enlightenment ideas include:

- use of reason;
- education;
- social reforms;
- tabula rasa (blank slate); and
- natural rights (life, liberty, and property).

Enlightenment thinkers believed that natural laws guided social, political and economic systems and institutions and this idea became known as the social contract.

Philosophical thought during the Enlightenment impacted religion, government, and economics in Europe. This was a challenge to many of the Church's doctrines and an increased focus on earthly as well as spiritual welfare. Challenges to the Church included:

- humanism;
- mercantilism; and
- laissez faire.

There was a shift from forms of government in which power was held by only one or few individuals to forms of government in which many have a say, both directly and indirectly. Enlightenment ideas promoted the belief in a social contract between the governed and their government. These shifts in ideas included:

- limited government;
- absolute rule;
- divine right; and
- separation of powers.

The mercantilist system was challenged due to a growing belief that natural laws could define an economic system including a free-market economy with limited, or laissez faire, government regulation

Instructional Strategies

Create a graphic organizer showing key Enlightenment ideas. For each idea, create a symbol. Explain how this idea would challenge ideas about power in government.

Students complete before and after charts, which show the changes in peoples' relationship with the church, and the shift toward more democratic forms of government and capitalism. For example:

	Pre-Enlightenment Thinking	Enlightenment Ideas	New Beliefs
Religion
Political rule
Economic systems

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

How did Enlightenment thinkers challenge the absolute power of kings?

How did Enlightenment thinkers challenge religious authority?

How did Enlightenment ideas change the relationship between citizens and their governments?

Complete the graphic organizer below to show the influence of Enlightenment thinking on religion, government and economics. Move the boxes to the correct categories on the chart.

Content Statement 6. Enlightenment ideas on the relationship of the individual and the government influenced the American and French Revolutions.

Essential Understanding

- How the Enlightenment led to Revolutions

Extended Understanding

- Long-term impact of the Enlightenment in modern world history

Academic Vocabulary

Tier 3

- American Revolution
- French Revolution

Ultimate Learning Target
Type: Reasoning

Broad Learning Target:

- The student can explain how Enlightenment ideas influenced the American and French Revolutions.

Underpinning Knowledge Learning Targets:

- The student can explain the key ideas of the Enlightenment on the relationship of the individual and the government.

Underpinning Reasoning Learning Targets:

- The student can connect the ideas of the Enlightenment to the American Revolution.
- The student can connect the ideas of the Enlightenment to the French Revolution.

8.HI.5 (Prior Grade Standard)

The ideas of the Enlightenment and dissatisfaction with colonial rule led English colonists to write the Declaration of Independence and launch the American Revolution.

10.HI.4 (Future Grade Standard)

The Declaration of Independence elaborates on the rights and role of the people in building the foundations of the American nation through the principles of unalienable rights and consent of the people.

Content Elaborations

The political, economic, and social changes that developed during the Enlightenment Age inspired the American and French Revolutions. Enlightenment writers explored the relationship between governments and the people they governed.

Leaders of revolutions and wars for independence during this time based their goals for political change upon Enlightenment ideas. These ideas include:

- freedom;
- natural rights;
- self-determination;
- limited government;
- consent of the governed; and
- the common good.

Instructional Strategies

Have students create a bulleted list of John Locke's ideas and then highlight the phrases in the Declaration of Independence where John Locke's ideas can be found.

Have students work in groups to analyze primary sources on the impact of Enlightenment ideas on the American Revolution, French Revolution and Latin American wars for independence.

Have students look for evidence to support the influence of Enlightenment ideas in revolutionary writings (e.g., evidence of Enlightenment ideas in the U.S. Constitution or the writings of Simon Bolivar).

Use a series of images to lead an interactive lecture/discussion on the impact of the Enlightenment on revolutions. After each image is displayed, ask students to respond to a series of guiding questions, from basic to complex.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

How did the Declaration of Independence and the French Declaration of the Rights of Man reflect Enlightenment ideas?

During the French Revolution, the formation of the National Assembly to act as a check on the king's power was an application of which Enlightenment idea?

How did the leaders of the American Revolution and French Revolution draw upon Enlightenment ideas?

Which ideas below reflect Enlightenment ideas that influenced the American Revolution and French Revolution?

Instructional Resources

10.HI.4 (Future Grade Standard)

The Declaration of Independence elaborates on the rights and role of the people in building the foundations of the American nation through the principles of unalienable rights and consent of the people.

Content Elaborations

The political, economic, and social events that inspired the American and French Revolutions also inspired revolutions in Latin America. These ideas and events included:

- freedom;
- natural rights;
- self-determination;
- limited government;
- consent of the governed;
- common good; and
- success of the American and French Revolutions.

However, Latin American revolutions had their own unique causes:

- encomienda;
- mita; and
- chattel slavery.

Instructional Strategies

Have students look for evidence to support the influence of Enlightenment ideas in revolutionary writings (e.g., evidence of Enlightenment ideas in the Declaration of the Rights of Man or the writings of Simon Bolivar).

Create a chart to compare the American, French, and Latin American Revolutions. Categories can include: type of government before the revolution, key leaders of the revolution, Enlightenment ideas that influenced revolutionary leaders, and important documents and they reflect Enlightenment ideas.

Write an essay on the topic: Was the _____ (American, French, Haitian) successful? The essay can address the questions: What makes a revolution successful? How did the revolution change the relationship between citizens and their governments? What was the long-term impact of the revolution?

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

What key ideas inspired the leaders of Latin American revolutions for independence?

Explain two similarities between the ideas that led to the French Revolution and revolutions in Latin America.

How did the leaders of the American Revolution, French Revolution, and Latin American revolutions draw upon Enlightenment ideas?

What causes of Latin American revolutions were unique?

Broad Learning Target:

- The student can analyze the social, political and economic effects of industrialization on Western Europe and the world.

Underpinning Knowledge Learning Targets:

- The student can cite positive effects of industrialization on daily life in Europe and North America.
- The student can cite negative effects of industrialization on daily life in Europe and North America.

Underpinning Reasoning Learning Targets:

- The student can explain how industrialization impacted population growth.
- The student can explain how industrialization impacted urbanization.
- The student can explain how industrialization impacted emigration out of Europe.
- The student can explain how industrialization led to movements for political and social reform in England.
- The student can explain how industrialization expanded the world-market economy.

8.HI.25 (Prior Grade Standard)

The Industrial Revolution fundamentally changed the means of production as a result of improvements in technology, use of new power resources, the advent of interchangeable parts and the shift from craftwork to factory work.

10.HI.9 (Future Grade Standard)

The rise of industrialization led to a rapidly expanding workforce. Labor organizations grew amidst unregulated working conditions, laissez-faire policies toward big business, and violence toward supporters of organized labor.

Content Elaborations

The Industrial Revolution transformed Europe and North America in the late 18th and 19th centuries. It had positive and negative effects on class distinctions, family life and the daily working lives of men, women and children. Population growth and migrations, urbanization and emigration out of Europe were impacted by the move to an industrialized economy. These impacts include:

- migration;
- urbanization;
- emigration;
- industrialization;
- labor unions forming
- social classes (middle and working class); and
- the economy.

The Industrial Revolution led to movements for political and social reform in England, Western Europe, and the United States. It also expanded the world-market economy.

Instructional Strategies

Have students create word maps for the terms industrial and revolution. Words maps can include: definition (in your own words), synonyms, use it meaningfully in a sentence, draw a picture or symbol.

Distribute event cards (e.g., invention of steam engine, transportation improvements, creation of textile mills) to students, either working in groups or individually. Have students annotate/illustrate two or more effects and identify whether they would be social, political or economic effects.

Use longitudinal data to illustrate urban growth as a social effect of industrialization. Data could include population density, life expectancy, infant mortality or population growth.

Use primary and secondary sources, data sets, maps, and images to have students analyze the effects of industrialization and write an evidence-based essay.

Conduct a Structured Academic Controversy on the question: Was the Industrial Revolution good for the world?

7.HI.10 (Prior Grade Standard)

European economic and cultural influence dramatically increased through explorations, conquests and colonization.

10.HI.14 (Future Grade Standard)

As a result of overseas expansion, the Spanish-American War and World War I, the United States emerged as a world power.

Content Elaborations

By the early 20th century, many European nations as well as Japan extended their control over other lands and created empires. Their motivations had economic, political and social roots.

The political motivations for imperialism included the desire to appear most powerful, bolster nationalism, and provide security through the building of military bases overseas (militarism).

Japanese leaders wanted to exert the power of Japan and confront Western imperialism by engaging in imperialist actions. Japan used its military might to establish footholds in Taiwan, China, and Korea.

Economic motivations were tied to production and consumption of goods. There was a need for new markets, raw materials and outlets for population growth.

European powers used spheres of influence to establish economic control in China. Economic influences of imperialism include:

- consumption;
- exploitation of labor;
- exploitation of raw materials;
- spheres of influence; and
- free market.

The social roots for imperial expansion included the spread of Western values and the vision of some that it was “the white man’s burden” to civilize those perceived as uncivilized. There were also humanitarian concerns and the spread of Christianity. The social roots of imperialism also included paternalism and social Darwinism.

Instructional Strategies

Create a concept map to analyze the term imperialism. Categories can include: What is it? What is it like? and What are some examples?

Use a jigsaw structure with a graphic organizer to lead students in the research and discussion of political, economic and social roots of imperialism. Divide students into three groups and assign each group one of the three roots of imperialism to study, including the motivations of European nations and Japan.

Use a series of primary sources (photographs, posters, political cartoons) to lead an interactive lecture/discussion on the roots of imperialism.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

What was the primary economic motivation for European imperialism in Africa and Asia in the late 19th century?

Explain two political motivations for European imperialism.

7.HI.10 (Prior Grade Standard)

European economic and cultural influence dramatically increased through explorations, conquests and colonization.

10.HI.14 (Future Grade Standard)

As a result of overseas expansion, the Spanish-American War and World War I, the United States emerged as a world power.

Content Elaborations

In the late 19th and early 20th centuries, European countries competed to establish colonies in Africa and Asia. Raw materials needed for their growing industries were extracted from the colonies. Colonial powers made unilateral decisions about land and people without consulting people living there, including:

- exploiting raw materials;
- exploiting people; and
- Berlin or Congo Conference.

Imperialism resulted in the spread of Western values (e.g., religion, customs, ways of governing).

Some European powers preferred direct control over the colonies they established during this period. Other European powers preferred indirect control over their colonies, using local systems of authority, believing that working with the local native leaders would lessen the possibility of revolts and would encourage assimilation into Western traditions.

European powers used spheres of influence to establish economic control in China.

Instructional Strategies

Create a cause and effect graphic organizer to show the roots of European imperialism and its impact on Africa and Asia.

Create a Venn diagram to compare direct and indirect control over colonies.

Have students create a thematic map showing the spheres of influence of European nations across the world. Students can use color and/or symbols to identify colonizing countries, type of control exerted (direct/indirect) and locations of natural resources. Discuss the notion that “The sun never sets on the British Empire.” What did this mean at the time?

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Which statement shows an effect of European imperialism in Africa and Asia in the late 19th and early 20th centuries?

How did imperialism spread Western values?

Explain the difference between direct and indirect control in the Age of Imperialism.

As a result of overseas expansion, the Spanish-American War and World War I, the United States emerged as a world power.

Content Elaborations

Dramatic differences in viewpoints existed between the European colonizers and those they colonized. Different viewpoints between these two groups included the extension of Western cultural practices vs. loss of traditions and modernization vs. breakup of past institutions.

Instructional Strategies

Read primary source excerpts and quotes on imperialism. Categorize and analyze the perspectives given in each source.

Have students create political cartoons that emphasize the divergent points of view of imperialism. Have students write essays or journal entries from one of the two perspectives.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Which statement below reflects an anti-imperialist perspective?

Sort the statements below into two columns to show the views of European colonizers and those they colonized.

Read the primary source excerpt below. Explain whether the perspective in this source is that of European colonizers or those they colonized.

Ultimate Learning Target
Type: Reasoning

Broad Learning Target:

- The student can explain how advancements in technology, communication, and transportation improved lives and had negative consequences.

Underpinning Knowledge Learning Targets:

- The student can list advances in technology in the first half of the 20th century.
- The student can discuss how advances in communication and transportation improved lives.
- The student can discuss negative effects of advances in technology, communication, and transportation.
- The student can explain the impact of new battlefield weapons in World War I.
- The student can explain the impact of the atomic bomb.

10.HI.17 (Future Grade Standard)

An improved standard of living for many, combined with technological innovations in communication, transportation and industry, resulted in social and cultural changes and tensions.

Content Elaborations

During the 20th century, advances in technology improved lives through an increase in the availability and variety of consumer goods, communication, and technology both for individuals and in the military.

Advances in technology, communication, and transportation also had negative impacts for both individuals and the military. As wars are fought new technologies are created and war becomes impersonal, industrialized, and efficient resulting in total war.

Instructional Strategies

Create a grab bag containing artifacts of advancement (images or models) for students to pick. Have students research and describe the advancements and their intended and unintended consequences. Have students decide if the advancements lived up to their promises to improve the quality of life.

Have students create journals (on paper or electronically) from three perspectives: World War I leaders, World War I soldiers, and World War I civilians. Ask them to write about the advances in technology, communication and transportation used for military purposes and their impact from each perspective. Students can be assigned one or two advances to focus on in their writing.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

How did advances in technology in the first half of the 20th century improve lives?

Give four examples of advances in communication that improved lives during the first half of the 20th century.

Which is an example of a negative effect of advances in technology in the first half of the 20th century?

Content Elaborations

Military spending among the great powers of Europe increased greatly in the years prior to World War I. Rivalries between the powers led to a building up of armed forces and an increase in distrust.

Imperialism was an important underlying cause of World War I. The great powers of Europe were competing for land around the world.

Intense nationalism grew among the European people (e.g., the influence of nationalism in the Balkans, which prompted the outbreak of WWI). Consequently, due to national animosities, there was little resistance to war when it began.

The system of alliances early in the century set the stage for enlarging a small-scale conflict into a world war. Each alliance brought several nations into the conflict. By the beginning of the war, the two large alliances were the Triple Entente and the Triple Alliance.

Instructional Strategies

Have students create a graphic organizer, flip book or foldable using the acronym MAIN (militarism, alliances, imperialism and nationalism) to remember the underlying causes of WWI. Alternatively, MANIA can be used to stand for militarism, alliances, nationalism, imperialism and assassination (of the Archduke of Austria-Hungary).

Use a series of maps and other visuals (photographs, paintings, political cartoons) to guide an interactive lecture/discussion on the causes of World War I.

Read primary source excerpts/quotes on the causes of World War I from multiple perspectives. Have students analyze and evaluate the perspectives in each source.

Using the book All Quiet on the Western Front by Erich Maria Remarque, connect to standards in English Language Arts.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Content Elaborations

The hard toll of World War I on Russia fueled the Bolshevik Revolution and ushered in the ideology of state-sponsored communism.

Following World War I, the Treaty of Versailles forever changed the political and social organizations of Europe. Its harsh terms for the defeated countries caused anger and created a climate for retribution. It also contributed to a worldwide depression.

The German, Austro-Hungarian and Ottoman empires collapsed and their former lands were carved up into new states and nations.

European powers were weakened by the following:

- financial loss through reparations and war debt;
- population loss; and
- destruction of towns, cities, and infrastructure

Nationalistic and militaristic political parties took advantage of economic troubles in order to gain political power. Totalitarian regimes found wide bases of support in several European countries, including Germany, Spain, and Italy. Great Britain and France's reluctance to challenge Nazi Germany's expansion efforts in the 1930s was a consequence of the devastation that resulted from World War I. This reluctance led to policies that allowed the Nazi party in Germany to grow, including:

- appeasement policy;
- Munich Crisis;
- isolationism; and
- failure of the League of Nations.

This aggressive expansion, met with appeasement, led World War II.

Instructional Strategies

Have students create bar graphs (by hand or using a spreadsheet) that show the casualties in World War I. Incorporate bar graphs into a poster or digital presentation and supplement the graphs with 8-10 photographs. Photographs should reflect the devastation of trench warfare and the new weapons of World War I. Have students create summaries that provide a written narrative of the information contained in the charts and photographs. The narrative should also address how these effects of World War I would impact the post-war World. Narratives can be word processed or recorded orally with a digital presentation tool.

Create a cause and effect graphic organizer showing the causes of World War II.

Analyze a series of political cartoons, photographs, quotes, maps, and other primary sources that show the origins of World War II.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Content Elaborations

By the early 1900s, the Ottoman Empire was in decline and the Ottomans believed that minority groups within the Empire were partially to blame for this decline, including the Armenians. The Ottomans began a systematic targeting of Armenians during World War I leading to the murder of millions of Armenians.

When the Nazi Party came to power in Germany, it capitalized on long-standing anti-Semitic ideologies to institutionalize discrimination and dehumanizing of Jews leading to the government's "Final Solution", the systematic mass murder of millions of Jews. Other groups of people suffered atrocities under Nazi persecution.

Factors that impacted the Holocaust include:

- anti-Semitism (historical, economic, and racial ideology);
- Nuremberg Laws;
- propaganda (using available means of technology); and
- concentration and death camps.

Instructional Strategies

Create a concept map of the term genocide. Categories can include: definition in your words, synonyms, examples, and use it meaningfully in a sentence.

Create a graphic organizer showing events related to the Holocaust. Include information such as: What happened? Where? When Why? How? Who was involved?

Have students research how Armenians and Jews were oppressed and discriminated against. Discuss the reasons for oppression and note similarities and differences between the ways these two groups were treated. Encourage students to draw conclusions about oppression and discrimination and their relationship to genocide.

Analyze data sets to show the human deaths and impact of the Armenian genocide and the Holocaust.

View, read, and discuss oral histories, testimonies, and essays written by Holocaust survivors from the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

The treatment of Armenians in the Ottoman Empire and the Holocaust in Europe are examples of _____.

What factors contributed to the persecution of Armenians in the Ottoman Empire during World War I?

10.HI.22 (Future Grade Standard)

Use of atomic weapons changed the nature of war, altered the balance of power and began the nuclear age.

Content Elaborations

World War II was a total war that caused unprecedented physical, economic, social, and cultural damage. Both the Axis and Allies targeted civilians during World War II. Damage included:

- refugees;
- casualties;
- loss of art;
- loss of infrastructure; and
- loss of employment.

The Allies divided Europe into zones of occupation at conferences in Yalta and Potsdam. Conflicts between the Allies about the zones of occupation led to competition for political influence.

World War II also changed the nature of warfare by introducing the use of atomic weapons, setting the stage for an era of political tension.

Instructional Strategies

Create a chart showing the destruction caused by World War II. Categories can include physical, economic, social, and cultural damage.

View images of the physical devastation of cities in Europe and Asia. Then, have students imagine how difficult it would be to rebuild homes and businesses after the bombings. Have students create journals (either paper or electronic) from the perspective of a young person living in an area destroyed by war.

Divide the class into two groups. Have the first group read excerpts from the proceedings of the Yalta Conference, and the second group do the same for the Potsdam Conference. Have students create a chart to identify the key agreements at the conference. Then, pair a member of the first group with a member of the second group and have them compare charts.

Create a decision-tree to show various alternatives and possible consequences for ending World War II against Japan. Evaluate the decision of the U.S. to drop atomic bombs to end the war.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Which statement shows the economic impact of World War II?

Explain two political effects of World War II.

Look at the photographs below of physical devastation caused by World War II. How did this physical damage impact the economy in postwar Europe?

On the chart below, categorize the effects of World War II by moving the boxes to the correct spaces to show social, cultural, and economic damages.

(Prior Grade Standard)

N/A

10.HI.23 (Future Grade Standard)

The United States followed a policy of containment during the Cold War in response to the spread of communism.

Content Elaborations

The United States and Soviet Union both emerged as superpowers following victories during World War II. Unlike most of Europe and parts of Asia, the United States had sustained little damage and had a strong economy at the end of World War II. The Soviet Union utilized its position to expand its territorial control of most of Eastern Europe.

The Cold War Era was a time of tension around the World. The United States and Soviet Union competed to assert political, economic, and social ideologies. The Cold War rivalry intensified around the world and Alliances were formed that reflected the tensions between the two major superpowers. Some of the factors that contributed to the tensions between the superpowers include:

- Berlin Airlift;
- NATO;
- Warsaw Pact;
- containment policy;
- domino theory; and
- growth of government intelligence services.

By the end of the 1940s there were several notable changes in the world. Communists gained control in China and the nuclear arms race between the United States and Soviet Union led to both sides developing and stockpiling more nuclear weapons.

Conflicts related to the Cold War rivalry, decolonization and national liberations provided opportunities for intervention by both sides. This rivalry impacted foreign policy in:

- Europe (e.g. East and West Germany, Greece);
- Asia (e.g., Korea, Vietnam, Turkey);
- Africa (e.g., Angola, Congo); and
- the Caribbean (e.g., Cuba).

Instructional Strategies

Create a cause and effect chart to show the factors that led to the Cold War rivalry between the U.S. and Soviet Union and the global impact of the Cold War.

Create a multimedia timeline/presentation of Cold War events. For each event, include a text summary and images, explaining how the event contributed to Cold War tensions.

Conduct a gallery walk using a series of Cold War political cartoons. Cartoon analysis guides are available from the National Archives or Library of Congress.

Use a blank world map to identify and describe Cold War events throughout the world.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Content Elaborations

National boundaries, particularly in Eastern Europe, changed as a result of World War II. Germany's boundaries changed and it became a divided country, occupied by the former Allies. The Soviet Union annexed several Eastern European countries and exerted control in others, ushering in the era of the Iron Curtain.

Several multinational organizations were created between the Allies to promote economic and political stability; including:

- United Nations;
- World Bank; and
- International Monetary Fund.

Instructional Strategies

Use Cold War maps to show the changes in national boundaries in Europe following World War II.

Create a chart/graphic organizer to show goals and actions of multinational organizations created to promote economic and political stability following World War II.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

On the map below, identify the changes in national boundaries following World War II.

Which statement describes the boundary changes that took place in Eastern Europe as a result of World War II?

What was the Iron Curtain?

Explain the purpose of multinational organizations that formed at the end of World War II.

Content Elaborations

The conflicts in the Middle East during the second half of the 20th century were the culmination of several factors that have deep roots in history. Contacts among major religions and religious sects in the Middle East have caused long-standing tensions and conflicts.

The end of colonial rule also caused tensions that resulted in conflict.

The rise in nationalism among Arab nations coincided with their opposition to the creation and presence of the modern state of Israel.

Instructional Strategies

Create a cause and effect graphic organizer to show the roots of Middle East conflict during the second half of the 20th century and the long-term impact.

Have students create maps and/or graphs detailing the religious diversity of the Middle East, including Egypt, Iran, Iraq, Israel, Jordan, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Syria and others. Students can analyze data from different multiple decades to illustrate the changes in religious demographics since 1945. Data can include comparisons of Christian, Jewish and Islamic populations, as well as membership in religious sects.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Content Elaborations

World War II had an important effect on Africa and Southeast Asia both during and after the war. Battles had been fought on both continents; and many Africans and Asians were conscripted to serve as soldiers at home and in Europe. Oppression and exploitation in these colonies, as well as weaknesses of the colonial powers and Cold War rivalries, helped unite different ethnic and religious groups in their struggles for independence.

- Nationalist movements united citizens for change in Africa; including the:
- Négritude movement; and
- Pan-African movement.

In Southeast Asia, nationalists organized against colonial control and, in some cases, the American presence in:

- Philippines;
- Vietnam; and
- Cambodia.

Instructional Strategies

Create vocabulary word maps for the terms decolonization and nationalism. Categories can include: definition in your own words, examples, use it meaningfully in a sentence, and draw a symbol to represent it.

Have students research the Négritude movement to understand how it helped fuel independence movements in Africa following World War II (e.g., Ghana, Kenya, Senegal, Nigeria). Assign students into groups representing leaders for independence in one of these countries and have them discuss the leaders' views on colonial rule, their movement for independence and how the Négritude movement encouraged independence efforts and how these leaders led the efforts to achieve independence from colonial rule.

Have students work in groups with each group representing one of the following countries/regions: Ghana (Gold Coast), Kenya, Algeria, Congo, South Africa, India, Southeast Asia/Indochina (Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia). Groups should create a poster (print or digital) highlighting the key information about independence in their respective countries. Posters should include: a cause/effect chart, the key individuals involved, the methods used to achieve independence, and the problems/challenges that have persisted in the country since gaining independence. Posters should also have visuals such as maps, primary source excerpts, photographs, and political cartoons. Students can use The Story of Africa BBC website for research. Post the poster displays on the wall and have students conduct a gallery walk to learn more about each country/region.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Which statement shows how World War II impacted Africa and Southeast Asia?

How did the Négritude movement and Pan-African movement fuel nationalist efforts in Africa?

Following World War II, the United States experienced a struggle for racial and gender equality and the extension of civil rights.

Content Elaborations

During the second half of the 20th century, human rights organizations and the media fueled the impetus for the expansion of rights and freedoms for women and indigenous people.

In spite of resistance in many countries, governments were also pressured to end discriminatory practices and violence against women and indigenous people in developing nations. The struggle for the rights of women and indigenous people compelled more countries to extend opportunities for all to participate in society in the following ways:

- politically;
- educationally;
- economically; and
- socially.

The ending of apartheid in South Africa provided blacks the rights they had been denied. This was the result of political pressure within and outside the country.

International pressure to change did not lead to immediate or universal change for women or indigenous people in some areas of the world where they are still fighting for these changes.

Instructional Strategies

Have students brainstorm what they believe are rights and freedoms, and discuss and debate which rights represent American values and which might be universal rights. (Refer to students' prior knowledge of rights and freedoms as described by Enlightenment thinkers.) Have students read the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (1948) and compare their class brainstorming list with those outlined in the UDHR. Access the UDHR at <http://www.un.org/en/universal-declaration-human-rights/index.html>

Have students work in groups to create multiple-tier timelines (either on paper or electronically) showing significant events in the struggle for expanded rights and freedoms for indigenous people. Timelines can include tiers for Africa, Asia, Australia, Europe, North America and South America.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

What factors helped expand rights and freedoms for women and indigenous groups during the second half of the 20th century?

Content Elaborations

The ending of the Cold War was marked by the collapse of the Soviet Union. A new relationship between the United States and Russia and the other former Soviet republics developed and offered new challenges for the United States. The United States moved away from its containment policy and moved towards bilateral agreements in areas such as:

- space;
- energy;
- technology; and
- nuclear weapons.

The demise of the Soviet Union also created new challenges for its former allies, the former Soviet republics, Europe, and the non-aligned world as well as the United States. Among the challenges:

- creation of separate and independent governments;
- control of the nuclear arsenals installed by the former Soviet Union;
- rise of ethnic tensions; and
- transition to free-market economies.

Instructional Strategies

Create a cause and effect chart to show factors that led to the collapse of the Soviet Union and the new relationship between the U.S. and Russia/former Soviet republics.

Use a series of political cartoons to show the collapse of the Soviet Union and its impact. Cartoon analysis guides are available from the National Archives or Library of Congress.

Have students research and create illustrations showing the ethnic make-up of the peoples living in the Soviet Union. Then, have students research and create illustrations that show the ethnic make-up of the former Soviet republics after the breakup of the Soviet Union. Draw conclusions about the role of ethnicity in uniting and dividing peoples. Have students look for examples of continuing conflict in these countries.

Content Elaborations

Acts of terrorism resulting from regional and ethnic conflicts in the post-Cold War era include those initiated by Islamic fundamentalists and by separatist groups (e.g., Al Qaeda, ISIS, Hamas, Chechen separatists, Irish Republican Army, Boko Haram).

Regional and ethnic conflicts have led to acts of genocide and ethnic cleansing. Genocide involves the systematic extermination of a group of people based upon specific religious, national, racial or other cultural characteristics. Ethnic cleansing involves the purposeful and forceful removal of a group of people from a region. The targeted groups have specific religious, national, racial or other cultural characteristics. Members of these groups are typically subjected to deportation, displacement or, ultimately, genocide.

The rise of nationalism among ethnic groups in the republics that emerged from the former Yugoslavia led to ethnic cleansing and the murder of thousands in Bosnia. Other examples of ethnic cleansing/genocide occurred in Sudan (Darfur), Iraq, Rwanda, and the Rohingya in Myanmar.

Instructional Strategies

Create a chart detailing the genocides that have occurred in the post-Cold War world, and compare them to the genocides in the first half of the 20th century. Have students debate why governments (especially the U.S.) have tended to treat some genocides differently than others.

Use a blank map to identify and summarize regional and ethnic conflicts and the rise of nationalism in the Post-Cold War era.

Have students research a regional or ethnic conflict in the post-Cold War era. Students should identify the key groups/individuals involved, causes and effects of the conflict, and how other nations responded. Students can share their research in a multimedia presentation with images, text, and narration.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Content Elaborations

The end of the Cold War posed new challenges with the proliferation of nuclear weapons and their threat to world peace on a global scale.

These new challenges include:

- the global danger of competing and emerging nuclear arsenals;
- unstable former Soviet republics housing weapons of mass destruction; and
- the possibility of access to nuclear weapons by terrorists and state supported terrorism.

Instructional Strategies

Have students research the countries that currently have nuclear weapons and nuclear capabilities. Research should also examine current efforts to stem the proliferation of nuclear weapons.

Have students write an editorial about nuclear weapons and their relationship to world peace. What nonproliferation strategies are most successful?

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Why did the collapse of the Soviet Union raise global concerns over nuclear weapons?

Why have nuclear weapons posed a challenge to world peace in recent decades?

Content Elaborations

Emerging economic powers (e.g., China, India, Brazil, Russia) have helped create a more interdependent global economy by gaining market share in the production of some goods and services.

The European Union was created in the early 1990s to strengthen the economies of the member nations and make them more competitive in the world market by using a common currency and eliminating trade barriers.

Improvements in technology, such as the expanded use of satellites, personal computers, the Internet and cellular telephones, have created a more interdependent global economy. For example, the Internet and cellular phones enable the sharing of business data and facilitate commercial transactions. The personal computer and Internet have transformed the workplace, permitting employees to work virtually anywhere in the world.

Instructional Strategies

Create a graphic organizer to show the causes and effects of the increasingly interdependent global economy.

Have students research current economic issues in the European Union or emerging economic powers (China, India, Brazil, Russia). Students can create an infographic to summarize current economic data and issues in a selected country.

Have students debate the pro and con sides of the economic effects of globalization. Have students answer questions such as Who does globalization benefit? and Who does globalization hurt?

Have students interview adults who grew up without personal computers, cell phones, the Internet or other 21st century technology. Ask them to discuss how their home and work life have been transformed by new technology in recent decades.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

What was the purpose for the creation of the European Union?

Give four examples of new advances in communications technology in the 1990s.

What was the impact of improvements in technology during the 1990s?

How have emerging economic powers such as China, India, Brazil, and Russia created a more interdependent global economy?

From the choices below, select two technological advancements from the 1900s. Then, explain the economic impact of these advancements.

Content Elaborations

The rapid increase of global population in the 20th and 21st centuries coupled with an increase in life expectancy has created societal and governmental challenges. The environmental impact has pressured governments to institute policies to reduce pollution and conserve resources. In response to the population problem in China, the government instituted a one child per couple policy. The increase of the elderly has placed burdens on many countries to provide adequate health care.

Mass migrations have created societal and governmental challenges, including:

- Brain drain out of developing countries;
- Tension and conflict in some receiving countries (e.g., immigrants from North Africa and other Arab nations into Europe); and
- Illegal immigration (e.g., U.S., South Africa).

Instructional Strategies

Create a Problem/Solution chart to analyze how governments have responded to the rapid increase of global population, increased life expectancy, and mass migrations in the 21st century.

Have students collect and interpret data about countries that are experiencing the greatest changes in population. Have them look for causes and effects of population increases or decreases. Have students analyze the societal and governmental challenges that have emerged and brainstorm possible solutions to these issues. Students could be encouraged to write a United Nations resolution proposing their solution.

Research an issue impacted by population and life expectancy (e.g., immigration, pollution, workforce). Students will identify careers involved in addressing the issue and influencing official policy (e.g., analyst, government employee, economist). Lastly, they will choose a career to research in more depth, and apply the information to their plan for education and training through high school and beyond.

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Explain four effects of rapid population growth in the late 20th and early 21st centuries.

How have governments have responded to rapid population growth?

What is one effect of increased life expectancy?

Explain two societal and political challenges created by mass migrations in recent decades.

10.HI.30 (Future Grade Standard)

Political debates focused on the extent of the role of government in the economy, environmental protection, social welfare and national security.

Content Elaborations

World population growth and the competition for energy supplies have led to an increase in greenhouse gas emissions, the loss of tens of thousands of plant and wildlife species and the rapid decline of rainforests.

A new environmental consciousness and a movement for the sustainability of the world's resources has influenced the actions of:

- Citizen organizations (e.g., Greenpeace, Sierra Club, World Wildlife Fund, Ocean Conservancy); and
- Government conferences (e.g., 1992 Earth Summit, 1997 Kyoto Protocol, 2012 Rio Earth Summit, 2016 Paris Agreement).

Instructional Strategies

Use data sets (tables, graphs) to analyze world population growth and the increase in greenhouse gas emissions, the loss of tens of thousands of plant and wildlife species and the rapid decline of rainforests.

Create a chart/graphic organizer to summarize and compare government conferences on environmental and sustainability issues (1992 Earth Summit, 1997 Kyoto Protocol, 2012 Rio Earth Summit, 2016 Paris Agreement).

Conduct research and create a public service announcement (audio or video) to promote the work of a citizen organization working on environmental and sustainability issues (Greenpeace, Sierra club, World Wildlife Fund, Ocean Conservancy).

Sample Assessments and Performance Tasks

Explain one cause and one effect of increased greenhouse emissions.

Which choices below are citizen organizations working for environmental and sustainability issues? Check all the correct answers.

How have governments addressed sustainability issues in recent decades?
